Finance professional & former BCLC FYE Mentor
What was your involvement within the BCLC?

My Freshman year at UConn, I was a member of the BCLC. Wanting to get more involved, I became an FYE Mentor my 2nd year, and eventually created an Independent Study with Larry Gramling, then BCLC coordinator, to analyze the variances amongst BCLC students, the School of Business students, and UConn as a general population.
What is your current position and what are your responsibilities?

I am currently in a 2 year rotational program at Synchrony Financial in Stamford, CT, concentrating in finance. In my current rotation, I am on the Legal Entity FP&A team, managing money cost allocation and deposit interest expense. I also have gotten involved in ad hoc projects, like forecasting for next year and taking notes at the executive meetings, along with being on the UConn recruiting team.
How did the BCLC help prepare you for your career?

BCLC was a great stepping stone in understanding what I wanted to do within business and finance, exposing me to various networking events and how to properly interview. It is crucial to use the resources within the program and build up from there.
